IFMA December 2007 Program

Demystifying Workplace Acoustics

Presented by:

Bob Cox, Workplace Strategist
Herman Miller

Continuing Education Units approved

Sound management is a complex issue in today's open offices, and there are no simple answers.

- People need to collaborate and communicate as well as work individually
- People are working closer together, and workstations are getting smaller
- There are many acoustic variables to consider, like sounds from people, HVAC, and office equipment

This program identifies the myths and beliefs that have evolved around sound management in the workplace and then explores how sound can be physically addressed by:

- Interior design, layout, and configuration
- Workplace behavior protocols
- Technology solutions
